

DuPage Water Commission Attends Argonne National Laboratory for Earth Day

Date: April 24, 2013

On Tuesday, April 24, 2013, DuPage Water Commission Water Preservation Group Member Jenessa Rodriguez attended as an exhibitor for Earth Day for Argonne National Laboratory employees. The display from the Commission as well as other Earth-friendly displays was set up so the Argonne employees could peruse through the displays on the way into the cafeteria.

Around 30 informational pamphlets about toilet leaks, lawncare, indoor/outdoor water use and a water quiz were handed out; about 80 5-minute shower timers, 120 rain gauges; and 30 toilet leak detection tablets were distributed. Many people were excited to see rain gauges and shower timers were developed and thought that these products were great ways to save water.

See below for pictures from the event.

Earth Week 2013 Poster

Section of Exhibitor set up

*(photo credit: Argonne National Laboratory)
Preserving Every Drop Display*